Making the Most of Class Sessions

The more work you put into class, the more benefit you will receive from it.

- Part of the work you should be doing is reading and thinking about the material discussed during meetings, including church services.

But there are other things you can do to make sure you benefit fully from your time in the program:

- Attend every group session.
- Arrive for group sessions on time or a little early.
- Listen carefully and respectfully to speaker and the other clients.
- Be supportive of other clients.

If you disagree with someone, be polite when you speak to him or her.

Do not attack people personally.

- Do not talk about other clients' personal information outside group.

Clients must be able to trust one another if they are to feel comfortable sharing their thoughts.

- Think about what you read and about what the instructor and other clients say.
- Ask questions when you do not understand something.
- Participate in group discussions.
- Do not dominate the conversation.

Allow time for other clients to participate.

- Be honest.
- After the session is over, think about what you learned and try to apply it to your recovery.
- Work on personal evaluation and enrichment times.

This is done through devotions and prayer time.

Journaling is suggested.

Always complete homework assignments.

Each day clients are required to begin day with meditation and end the day with a time of reflection. Scheduled times are listed in the daily schedule.

Group/Outside Group/Church Etiquette

- Be punctual!
Being on time for meetings shows maturity and the desire to be in program.
Being punctual is having courtesy for others.
- Come Prepared!
Have all personal needs accomplished before walking into meeting.
This includes bathroom needs and phone use.
There is no getting up in meeting unless it is emergency.
Getting up and down is distracting to others.
- Dress Correctly!
Appropriate attire is important.
- Actively listen and participate.

Meeting productivity relies on participants listening well to others and actively participating in discussions.

You could practice active listening by nodding or paraphrasing what the other person is saying to show understanding, expressing your concern or asking specific, probing questions. In addition to showing the person that you respect their opinion and want to hear what they have to say, active listening helps you stay focused and offer more meaningful responses.

- Do not talk or be disruptive during meeting!

Be aware of others around you.

Talking and whispering while in a meeting is very distracting.

- Be attentive!

No tapping, fidgeting, rustling, noise making, laughing, talking to others is a distraction.

- Leave When Closed Not Before!

Clients are not allowed to leave meeting early.

Clients will leave when group leader has dismissed everyone.

No one is to be sleeping or lying their head down during classes, church, or meetings.

At all Group/Church/Celebrate Recovery Meetings clients will sit together in one designated area.

In a recovery group or meeting, etiquette often revolves around respect, confidentiality, and creating a safe space for everyone.

Some common rules include:

1. Confidentiality: What's shared in the group stays within the group.
2. Respect: Everyone's journey is unique; avoid judgment and offer support.
3. Timeliness: Arrive on time and respect the duration of the meeting.
4. Participation: Contribute to discussions but also listen attentively.
5. No Cross-Talk: Avoid directly addressing or engaging with specific individuals during sharing unless prompted.
6. No Fraternizing with the Opposite Sex: While this rule may vary, it's often in place to maintain focus on recovery rather than potential distractions or complications that could arise from relationships within the group.

It's essential for these rules to be clearly communicated and agreed upon by all members to ensure a supportive and effective environment for recovery.
